

Cheryl DeWalt

Environmental Education & Garden Manager
Madison Children's Museum

Cheryl DeWalt is the Environmental Education and Garden Manager at the Madison Children's Museum. She co-leads the museum's Green Team and is passionate about sustainability. Her personal and professional pursuits are driven by a desire to build a more sustainable community and promote environmental stewardship. She earned her degree from UW-Madison and has been a leader in educating about the environment ever since. She has developed and run community gardens, raised money and assisted in building a community orchard for Madison Fruits and Nuts, helped develop and pass the chicken ordinance in Madison that allows residents to raise backyard chicken flocks, and she has presented around the country on sustainability, garden education, and permaculture. Cheryl is also an artist who works with COB, wood, metal, and fibers.
